After .....

5 Choose the correct answer.

Everyone enjoys <sup>1</sup> to walk / walking in the forest or in a garden and <sup>2</sup> admiring / to admire the flowers and plants. However, there are some plants that you really don't want <sup>3</sup> getting / to get close to. Take, for example, the Skunk Cabbage plant from North America. Native Americans eat parts of it, but <sup>4</sup> eating / to eat the wrong part can be deadly! In addition, many people find it difficult <sup>5</sup> to go / going anywhere near the plant because of its terrible smell. Are you interested in <sup>6</sup> seeing / to see some really weird plants? Then Australia is the place for you! One Australian tree you should avoid <sup>7</sup> to come / coming into close contact with is the Gympie-Gympie tree. It's the most dangerous tree in the world. If you are lucky enough <sup>8</sup> surviving / to survive its sting, there's a chance you will still feel the burning pain two years later! Maybe instead of <sup>9</sup> seeing / to see or <sup>10</sup> to touch / touching the real thing, it's safer just to look at it on the Internet!
